California AB 1200 Requirements

The cookware disclosure requirement of California AB 1200 is found in the California Health & Safety Code beginning in Section 109010. Commencing on January 1, 2024, a manufacturer of cookware sold in the state that contains one or more intentionally added chemicals present on the designated list in the handle of the product or in any product surface that comes into contact with food, foodstuffs, or beverages shall list the presence of those chemicals on the product label. The list of intentionally added chemicals shall be introduced by the phrase “This product contains:”, and shall include on the product label a statement, in both English and Spanish, that reads: “For more information about chemicals in this product, visit”, followed by both of the following:

(1) An internet website address for a web page that provides all of the information required by Section 109012.

(2) A quick response (QR) code or other machine-readable code, consisting of an array of squares, used for storing an internet website for a web page that provides all of the information required by Section 109012.

Commencing on January 1, 2023, a manufacturer of cookware sold in the state that contains one or more intentionally added chemicals present on the designated list in the handle of the product or in any cookware surface that comes into contact with food, foodstuffs, or beverages shall post on the internet website for the cookware all of the following:

(a) A list of all chemicals in the cookware that are also present on the designated list.

(b) The names of the authoritative list or lists referenced by the Department of Toxic Substances Control in compiling the designated list on which each chemical in the cookware is present.

(c) A link to the internet website for the authoritative list or lists identified pursuant to subdivision (b).

LG Electronics Food Safety

The presence of a chemical on the below list does not mean that the product is unsafe or poses a health risk.
